and simplicity with which the story Cause of Fire Not Given.

Captain Inch does not say what mused the fire, reporting simply that the chief officers advised him at 10 unntes before 7 octock and that five minutes later the flames had burst hyrough the forward batches and were necessary. arough the forward hatches and were through the forward hatches and were spreading rapidly.

Although all possible measures were taken at once to subdue the fire, the captain's story shows that it was evidently too late to save the watch below. The men were trapped in the forecastle and burned to death.

Then came explosions which wrecked part of the midships section of the steamer.

Two Beats Missing.

"Boats number 13 and 15 were smashed," is the simple way captain inch describes the result of the first attempt to launch the life craft. Two boats under chief officer Miller and fourth officer Langsell finally got away. Captain Inch knew nothing of the fate of these boats and so far as is known no one else does. No trace of them has been discovered and they probably are lost with all on board.

The Volturno's master covers in a few words the progress of the fire through the night and how, when the rescue steamers came up and had rescue steamers came up and had failed, because of the heavy weather, to get boats to the burning liner, some passengers jumped overboard and were picked up by the attending craft. picked up by the attending craft.

131 Persons Are Missing.
Passenger agent Fourman, of the Uranium line here, said his figures showed 657 person on the Volturno, 24 cabin and 540 steerage passengers and 23 in the crew. His lists accounted for 526, leaving 131 missing.

It is announced that the North German Lloyd steamer Seidlitz, bearing 45 survivers of the Volturno, will stop at Philadelphia today before proceeding to Baltimore.
